Images of Life in New Zealand

Depicting our lifes from the 19th to the 21st centuries

Throughout history artists have always made such an invaluable contribution in the recording of our lives.

By depicting what they see around them, their artworks give us a glimpse of life as it was during their lifetimes. This is something that continues today and it gives us more than just a photograph. The artists present their own interpretation of life in the environment they live in.

There are images of people at home, at work and enjoying leisure time.

The artworks featured in this 'Kiwi Life' exhibition depict life in New Zealand from the mid-nineteenth century through to the twenty-first century.

Of course, many 'Kiwis' travel all over the world, which tends to make us even more aware, when we return home, of our unique environment and lifestyle.

We know that you will enjoy viewing this wide variety of Kiwi Life artworks, and we hope that you will find something to add to your art collection.
